Item 4. Advisory Business

Cannon Capital Management, Inc. (“CCM” or “the Firm”) is a fee-based investment advisor that offers two types of advisory services: 1) Portfolio Management and Financial Planning and 2) Pension Consulting and Advisory Services.

CCM has been in business since January of 2008 and is solely owned by Clinton C. Cannon. The experience, education and background of Clinton C. Cannon and the investment advisor representatives of CCM can be found in the accompanying Brochure Supplement document.

Portfolio Management and Financial Planning

CCM will provide the Client a free initial consultation. Among the purposes served by the initial consultation is to:

- Introduce the Client to CCM’s firm, its services and staff;
- Gather applicable information about the Client’s investment objectives, financial condition and risk tolerance that CCM will use in establishing the parameters around which CCM will develop the Client’s investment portfolio and financial plan; and
- Reach an agreement on the terms of service and compensation for CCM’s services.

If the Client elects to use CCM’s portfolio management services, the Client will sign CCM’s Investment Advisory Agreement. The Client will also sign any custodial agreements necessary to establish a custodial account with a brokerage firm and authorize CCM to execute trades in the account for the Client. Clients will be notified of all transactions by trade confirmations from their broker-dealer/custodian and through communication with CCM.

CCM will also request—through the investment Advisory Agreement—that the Client provide written authorization to allow CCM to automatically deduct its advisory fee from the Client’s account (please refer to the “Fees and Compensation” section on pages 7-8 of this Firm Brochure). CCM will not have the authority to make any other withdrawals from the Client’s account(s) under management.

Client accounts are managed on a discretionary basis, meaning CCM will buy or sell securities in the Client’s account without obtaining prior approval of trades from the client. Clients may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities. CCM monitors Client accounts on a daily basis so that it may make any necessary transactions to keep the Client’s account in line with its investment objectives.

CCM and the Client will establish a formal review schedule to discuss the Client’s investment portfolio, their financial plan, and to review the investment returns generated in the portfolio and make any changes to the parameters around which the portfolio is managed.

Cannon Capital Management, Inc.

While CCM will have discretionary authority to execute buy and sell orders in the Client's account, Clients should always review their brokerage account statements to verify the trading activity and withdrawals that occur in their account(s).

CCM uses a wide variety of investment mechanisms to create portfolios for its clients. Included in the suite of investment choices are the following:

- Equity or stock tools – publicly traded and exchange-listed securities, securities that are traded over-the-counter and foreign listed issuers of stock that are American Depository Receipts (ADR) and therefore listed on the U.S. exchanges
- Mutual funds and Exchange traded Funds (ETF's)
- Corporate debt securities
- Commercial paper
- Certificates of deposit (CD'S)
- Tax free debt securities often referred to as municipal debt
- Debt issued by the U.S. Government or it's agencies
- Mutual funds and ETF's that invest in similar debt instruments as those listed above

- Alternative Investments such as Private Equity and Real Estate Investment Trusts (REIT)

There are risks associated with each type of investment vehicle used by CCM in the creation of a portfolio. Each investment vehicle could face the possibility of bankruptcy and the value of the underlying security, be it equity or debt, could fall to zero and result in a complete investment loss. CCM believes that the creation of a diversified portfolio severely limits the possibility of a complete portfolio loss; but, in an extreme environment such a possibility exists. However, CCM does not utilize any strategies or invest in any securities in which the loss could be greater than the investment cost of the security. CCM does not participate in any wrap fee programs.

CCM serves as an ERISA 3(21) investment co-fiduciary with the Plan Sponsor, a 3(38) investment - fiduciary or a Plan Consultant for Qualified Retirement Plans at the Plan Sponsor's direction. CCM's compensation is entirely fee based and includes no compensation or revenue sharing from securities used by the Plan. CCM's services in this area refer to 401(k) Plans.

CCM's Pension Consulting and Advisory Services include the following:

- Developing an Investment Policy Statement (IPS) for the Plan

- Attending, conducting and documenting Trustee meetings
- Participant investment education – through group and one on one meetings
- Coordinating Plan administration with the respective Plan service providers
- Consulting with Plan trustees regarding administration and Plan compliance with rules and regulations

CCM advocates its Pension Clients use an open architecture investment platform which allows greater flexibility and control of the investment options used by the Plan Sponsor. When an open architecture platform is used by the Client, CCM will create "pre-made" risk- based or Target Date investment portfolio models for the Plan Participants to select from using the Plan investment options. The pre-made risk- based or Target Date investment portfolios are in addition to the individual fund options from which a Plan Participant may choose to use as their investment tools in creating their own investment portfolio. CCM will offer direct advice when asked, but does not have the authority to direct the individual Plan Participants' investment choices.

Cannon Capital Management, Inc.

As such, CCM does not have discretionary control over individual Plan Participants investment decisions. CCM's compensation is not conditional upon the use of the pre-made risk-based or Target Date portfolio models by the Plan Participant – please refer to the “Fees and Compensation” section on pages 7 - 8 of this Firm Brochure.

The investment Securities used in the Pension Consulting and Advisory Services by CCM include:

- Publicly traded Mutual Funds and Exchange Traded Funds
- Sub-advised funds with relationships through insurance firms such as John Hancock, Principal Financial, etc.

Funds used by Clients may consist of both actively managed and passive or indexed funds.

CCM does not offer investment advice or use other investment vehicles other than those listed above in its Pension Consulting and Advisory Services.

There are risks associated with each type of investment vehicle recommended by CCM in the Pension Consulting and Advisory Services. Each investment vehicle could face the possibility of bankruptcy and the underlying funds, be it equity or debt, could fall to zero and result in a complete investment loss. CCM believes that the creation of a diversified portfolio severely limits the possibility of a complete portfolio loss; but, in an extreme environment such a possibility exists. However, CCM does not recommend or provide any strategies or funds in which the loss could be greater than the investment cost of the security.

CCM does not participate in any wrap fee programs.

Cannon Capital Management, Inc.

Item 8. Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Portfolio Management

The investment advisory services are based on the following philosophies and investment disciplines for the equity (stock) and fixed income (bond) markets.

Equity Investment Philosophy and Discipline:

Our equity investment philosophy is founded on a belief in diversification, minimal costs, and that some sectors of the market consistently perform better than other sectors of the market. We design our investment allocations around these differences.

Our investment discipline incorporates our philosophy and adds to it the structure of a consistent and disciplined valuation review of investment sectors including: Large Cap Stocks, Medium Cap Stocks, Small Cap Stocks, Foreign Developed Stocks, Emerging Market Stocks, Alternative Investments and Natural Resources. Based on this review we will from time to time adjust our allocations to take advantage of sectors that are inordinately cheap or unusually expensive.

We use a variety of Exchange Traded Funds (ETF's) or other similar investment vehicles to strategically allocate funds in a portfolio designated for equity exposure. The ETF's we use will generally be index funds of a broad asset class such as Large Cap, Mid Cap, Emerging International Markets, etc. or narrower sector funds such as in healthcare, finance, energy or technology. Our use of ETF funds is to create an effective means to allocate assets in a strategic manner. We feel that by using a combination of mutual funds and ETF's we can create an equity investment portfolio that will be more efficient from a volatility or risk standpoint and yet provide a diversified portfolio with significant opportunity to grow over an investor's time horizon.

Typically, equity portfolios will be comprised of up to 100% ETF's. Under certain conditions, individual stock positions will be held in portfolios.

Risks in our analysis and implementation of investment strategies include the following:

- Faulty information released by the companies in which we have made an investment
- Incorrect analysis of information regarding an investment
- Undisciplined implementation of our strategies

Cannon Capital Management, Inc.

Despite the analysis performed by CCM of the investments it makes for its clients, any investment carries market risk and investors may lose their principal investment. While CCM does not engage in frequent trading strategies, all trades may carry a cost of execution, called a brokerage fee, and excessive trading can result in increased costs to the Client without an equivalent increase in return. Individual stocks will generally carry a greater amount of risk than an ETF security as the ETF will have a greater number of stocks within its holdings and thereby reduce the risk of the overall portfolio. Individual stocks and ETF securities can be leveraged which in turn increases the risk of greater loss and return. CCM does not leverage individual stocks or use leveraged ETF securities.

Fixed Income Philosophy and Discipline

We believe in using fixed income mutual funds, exchange traded funds and private market funds to generate the highest level of income relative to the prevailing credit and maturity conditions existing in the market and as set by our client's preferences. We incorporate a discipline that involves creating a diversified portfolio of fixed income securities to meet our client's specific needs and circumstances.

We use Exchange Traded Funds (ETF's), private market funds and, in some cases mutual funds, to strategically provide income to our client portfolios. The use of fixed income ETFs allows us to quickly create a diversified portfolio of fixed income instruments from a maturity, type and credit quality standpoint. Generally, the fixed income ETF's we use will be passive and based upon an index with a specific maturity, type of issuer and credit rating that allows us the opportunity to create a more efficient fixed income portfolio by incorporating individual fixed income securities with those in a fixed income ETF.

Risks in our analysis and implementation of investment strategies include the following:

- Faulty information released by the companies in which we have made an investment
- Inability of the issuer of debt to pay back their commitment
- Undisciplined implementation of our strategies

Despite the analysis performed by CCM of the investments it makes for its clients, any investment carries market risk and investors may lose their principal investment. While CCM does not engage in frequent trading strategies, all trades may carry a cost of execution, called a brokerage fee, and excessive trading can result in increased costs to the Client without an equivalent increase in return. ETF securities can be leveraged which in turn increases the risk of greater loss and return. CCM does not leverage ETF securities.

Item 11. Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics

Pursuant to SEC Rule 204A-1, CCM has a Code of Ethics that promotes the fiduciary duty of CCM and its Representatives. The Code of Ethics articulates the importance of trust as a foundation to the relationship between an investment advisor and its clients and establishes policies and procedures to ensure that CCM and its Representatives place the interests of the Clients first. The confidential information, fiduciary standard of care, personal trading on the part of the CCM and its Representatives, outside business activities of Representatives, and the disclosure of conflicts of interest.

A copy of CCM's Code of Ethics is available upon request for any Client or prospective Client.

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

CCM or its owners and Representatives may buy or sell securities which the firm has recommended to its clients. Individual transactions initiated by owners and associates of CCM as well as by CCM itself must first be cleared by the Chief Compliance Officer of the firm and are not allowed to front run any of the trades done on behalf of Cannon Capital Management's clients.

Cannon Capital Management, Inc.

Allowing CCM, its ownership or associates to buy or sell securities which the firm is recommending to its clients could create a conflict of interest between CCM and its clients. CCM recognizes this potential conflict of interest and adheres to a strict code of ethics which has as its central point the principal of Duty of Loyalty to our clients. Neither CCM nor any of its Representatives recommend securities to its clients in which it has a material financial interest.

Item 12. Brokerage Practices

CCM does suggest the use of certain custodians to its clients. The suggestions CCM makes are based on the ability of the respective custodian(s) to execute orders in a timely and efficient manner while minimizing the cost of the transaction. CCM does not engage in the practice of using "soft dollar" commissions from the brokerage fees generated by its clients to purchase products or services from third party vendors. CCM does not recommend a particular broker-dealer based on obtaining referrals from the broker-dealer. CCM does not receive any compensation, either direct or indirect, from any brokerage charged to Client accounts.

Trades executed for clients whose assets are held in custody for them by Charles Schwab will be charged a commission rate based on the schedule established by Charles Schwab. Clients whose assets are not held in custody at Charles Schwab will have their trades executed by brokers with whom CCM will, in conjunction with the broker, determine the commission rate paid for the respective trades. CCM will seek to minimize the cost of the trades on behalf of the client. CCM will aggregate the purchase or sale of securities for various Client accounts. The aggregation of trade orders creates efficiency in price execution and prohibits any one client from receiving a favorable treatment of a trade.

Item 13. Review of Accounts

Client investment advisory portfolios are reviewed on a daily or weekly basis. Reviews are triggered by systematic monitoring of the portfolios, investment actions taken by the Portfolio manager and through formal reviews with the respective clients. All reviews are conducted by a member of the Firm's investment committee consisting of: Clinton C. Cannon, CFA, CPFA Managing Director, Chace T. Cannon, AIF, QPFC and Managing Director and Christopher G. Harris, Managing Director.

Cannon Capital Management, Inc.
